Campaning school councillors taking messages to Westminster

Hello and welcome to our weekly newsletter. We have started off the new half term with another busy week in school which has included welcoming parents and families to meet with class teachers, for our Spring Parents Evening. As always it is great to share with parents how well children are doing and work together to ensure children are achieving and succeeding in all areas of school life. We left leaflets on the children's trays to encourage volunteers for our school Fundraising group, and we would still be keen to hear from you if this is something you would be interested in. We have also had a Zero Hero treat today from Mrs McIntyre in the kitchen who has been busy making shortbread for all children who did not receive a negative Dojo last half term – we hope they enjoyed them 😊. In other news, we were delighted that the local media picked up the School Ambassadors recent visit to MP Josh MacAlister and did a great write up on their efforts – click on the photo above for the link. Next week we will continue to be busy and are all looking forward to our annual celebration of all things literary, with World Book Day 2025 being held on Thursday 6th March. This is always an amazing day and we are excited to see the range of costumes which children (and the staff) will be wearing this year! There will be lots of pictures on ClassDojo, I am sure, and if anyone needs costume ideas there is a link on the ClassDojo World Book Day event. As always, we have rounded off the week celebrating some of this week's best and brightest moments, which have included being excellent role models, getting 100% in reading quizzes and being shining examples of the St James' Way. Wishing you all a restful weekend, Mr Beattie
